3.3 Brief about the address/talk of speakers

Vice-President- RBEF and Director- International Affairs, Prof. (Dr.) Gunjan M Sanjeev welcomed the guest speaker Prof. (Dr) Tarun khanna, Jorge Paulo Lemann Professor, Harvard Business School, Director, Lakshmi Mittal & Family South Asia Institute, Harvard University, USA who is also a Nominee of a Young Global Leader (under 40) in the past by the World Economic Forum and other senior officials of Amity University and all the participants. Prof. (Dr.) Gunjan M Sanjeev also introduced the illustrious guest speaker to the audience. She also emphasized on how issues brought out in the session wouldb be relevant to other emerging nations also as the ecosystem broadly remains the same across such countries.”Internationalization of higher education is an integral agenda at AUH and the entire Faculty fraternity and student community would definitely benefit from the expertise and perspectives of distinguished academicians brought out at such prestigious forums from different parts of the world.

While delivering his welcome address Vice Chancellor of AUH, Prof P B Sharma emphasized the need for creating a scientific mindset embedded with enterprising spirit to unleash enormous potential of mass-entrepreneurship in India. Prof Sharma also added that Technology, Transparency and Trust are the three Ts that go together in the present age of digital transformation and hence to cultivate trust increasing use of technology would be highly beneficial. He proudly mentioned that how founders of Amity University have cultivated trust in our organization that is consistently driving us towards excellence.

Subsequently , the felicitation ceremony was conducted in which the ceremonial citation was presented virtually to Prof. Tarun Khanna. The citation highlighted some of the gear work that he has achieved over years in his professional journey of gowth and excellence.

Prof (Dr) Tarun Khanna expressed his gratitude for such honour.In his keynote presentation Prof. Tarun Khanna described in great details about how investing in trust is beneficial and the four important points for the entrepreneurship i.e Food, Dignity, Talent and Ideas.

“Entrepreneurs with great ideas in developing countries need to evolve frameworks of trust which would create positive societal impacts and bring commercial benefits as well. He cited case studies of “Wondermilk” in China, “BRAC” in Bangladesh and elaborated how startups got successful by developing an ecosystem of trust around their commercial operations. He also talked about how start-up firms like Aspiring Minds harvested the need of sound trustworthy ecosystem as a business opportunity which worked creatively to match talent with job requirements using most modern tech and AI tools.Professor Khanna also touched upon the need to eliminate mistrust between scientists and entrepreneurs so that a free flowing collaboration could happen to bring societal benefits. We should work on unlocking scientific potential to allow free flow of ideas to generate creative solutions to the societal problems,” added Prof Khanna.

The occasion also celebrated the publication of the book “Trust” authored by Prof. Tarun Khanna in which budding entrepreneurs from different emerging economies- Bhutan , India , Nepal , Sierra Leone amongst others shared their stories on how this book helped them in their entrepreneurial journey and improved their business prospects and how this book is a must for all entrepreneurs.

Bal, Director-ASCI, Prof. (Dr.) Arvind Chabra and Director-AIP, Prof. (Dr.) Satish Sardana. The event was attended by many students and faculty members from ASCI, AIP, AIB and External Audience from India and Overseas.

3.2 Objectives of the Event

The main objective of the event was to create exclusive internationalization learning exposure and to provide a platform to AUH fraternity to interact and brainstorm with top academicians from premier foreign institutions across the globe and learn best practices on the contemporary topics across various domains.

3.3 Brief about the address/talk of speakers

At the webinar titled “Role of Auxin Influx Carriers in Plant Development”, Dr. Ranjan Swarup elucidated about various plant growth hormones (auxins) and their contribution to regulate root development and their impact on overall plant growth and development. "Plants have a specific set of hormones, auxins and gibberellins, that regulate development of root and the shoot, respectively. Development of healthy roots, with more numbers of secondary roots, will naturally provide more nutrients to the plant, which would help grow healthy plants with better stem, fruits and leaves, quantitatively as well as qualitatively. Therefore, development of ways by which we induce healthy root formation would increase plant productivity”, he mentioned.

Dr. Swarup studies hormone regulated root development and its impact on above ground physiology of the plants. Towards this, he examines the role of auxins in root development process. Auxin is a key plant hormone regulating various aspects of plant growth and development. Dr. Swarup is studying the role of AUX/LAX gene family that encodes high affinity auxin transporters which facilitate auxin transport, are located on the plasma membrane (PM). He also provided evidence that AUX1 PM localisation is mediated by AXR4. Further, he showed that auxin influx carriers are required for low Phosphorus mediated root hair elongation response in Arabidopsis and rice. He also presented his recent findings rice homolog of AXR4. Given that better root development in plants would improve plant health and productivity, Dr. Swarup's work has significant implications. As mentioned before, inducing healthy root formation could increase productivity of the plants, therefore, Dr. Swarup's research has direct translational implications." Currently working as Associate Professor at University of Nottingham, UK (Ranked amongst the top 100 as per QS global world university rankings 2021), Dr. Ranjan Swarup is a world-renowned expert on hormone regulated root development, authoring many highly cited papers.

“Today's focus on biosciences will be vital for protecting the interests of the humankind on all fronts in future. Be it health, food security, clean environment, and healthy living, we cannot afford to escape today from the need of investing our time, efforts, and investments in the field of bio sciences. Global linkages and exchange of ideas between the top academicians will certainly go a long way in this more relevant and meaningful”, said Vice President–RBEF (Amity Education Group) & Director–International Affairs, Prof. (Dr.) Gunjan M. Sanjeev, host & moderator, while delivering her opening remarks.

Director–Amity Stem Cell Institute, Prof. (Dr.) Arvind Chhabra, presented his remarks highlighting that Dr. Swarup’s work will go a long way in improving plant productivity, which has significant potential in addressing the issue of food scarcity in the world, especially in country like India with 1.4 billion people and counting.

Several senior officials who graced the webinar with their presence are Deputy Vice-Chancellor, Maj. Gen. BS Suhag, Dean-DSW, Maj. Gen. G.S. Bal and Director-AIP, Prof. (Dr.) Satish Sardana. The session was appreciated and witnessed about hundred participants from both India as well as overseas. emphasized that Universities should consider their strategies to result in teaching, research and impacting on the society to solve local and global issues.

Prof. Shaw had a great message for the student community. She advised that the students should consider designing their future in the interest of their own wellbeing, as well as a for a greater common good to serve the society. She stressed on the importance of the combination of learning, research, scholarship, international collaboration and interdisciplinary education that the university provides. In order to do this, student should not only achieve the deep knowledge of their disciplines but should be prepared for inter-disciplinary partnerships, inter-disciplinary friendships and find experiences which enable them to apply their knowledge in the context. Prof. Shaw highlighted the importance of collaboration across cultures, across boundaries and across disciplines to solve global issues such as the ongoing pandemic. She also shared insights to develop leadership thinking.

Currently, as Professor of Success and Progression at the prestigious Newcastle University, UK, she is a member of the senior executive team and works with all three of the University's Faculties to help develop the curricula, teaching and student experiences to provide the very best opportunities for students to thrive in the workplace of the future. She is the Vice-President of NFER, the leading independent UK provider of education research and insights; sits on several Boards, including the Digital Steering Group of the regional Enterprise Partnership and mentors several young academics and entrepreneurs."

Hon'ble Vice Chancellor Prof. (Dr.) PB Sharma appreciated the great work and insights shared by Prof. Shaw and expressed his happiness over the presence of esteemed speaker from the premier foreign university at webinar. The discussion was hosted and moderated by Vice-President- RBEF and Director-International Affairs, Prof. (Dr.) Gunjan M Sanjeev. While delivering her remarks, she emphasized on the role of collaboration and that University education must integrate interdisciplinary, inter-cultural and international learning in order to prepare students to solve global issues.

Dean-Faculty of Arts, Prof. UN Singh mentioned that in order to address mega trends, interdisciplinary education and intercultural exposure are very crucial and university education must integrate and impart the two elements along with the deep disciplinary knowledge.

Other senior key officials including Prof. (Dr.) Arvind Chhabra, Director ASCI and Director-AIBAS, Prof. (Dr.) Rajesh Nair were also present at the session. The session was appreciated and witnessed about two hundred participants from both India as well as overseas.

Vice-President- RBEF and Director- International Affairs, Prof. (Dr.) Gunjan M Sanjeev welcomed the participants and introduced esteemed guests to the audience. Prof. (Dr.) Gunjan M Sanjeev also talked about the necessity of new leadership lessons to be adopted to lead through crisis and managing organizations.

During his talk, Dr. Brian mentioned different types of crises and about various stages of a crisis which the organizations could face in their functioning. He gave some very lucid examples to explain some of the crisis that has affected the world before COVID 19. In the Indian context, he highlighted some of the disasters such as the Indian Ocean Tsunami 2004 and the Bhopal tragedy that occurred in 1984. He emphasized that in such a scenario, the government must address challenges on three fronts – How do we address the health crises? How do we address the economic crisis? and, how do we keep the business of the government operating? He suggested that the government should respond fast to recover and thrive from such crisis.

He raised a very important issue as to what does good leadership looks like during a crisis. The salient features that emerged from his discussion are- acting with urgency, communicating with transparency, responding productively to missteps, and engaging in constant updating. He further brought out a very relevant point where he emphasized that it is wrong to think that the work of the leader is to set a course and stick to it. He opined that leader must constantly update their understanding of prior probabilities deliberately using strategies to elicit new information and learn rapidly as events unfold and new information comes to light.

Dr. Brian is the Executive Director at Birmingham University, UK. He teaches Crisis Management and Organizational Reliability and Resilience. Brian has recently taught in Singapore, Malaysia, India, Jordan, and Zambia and worked with Airbus on their World Class Leaders Programme and taught a Risk and Crisis Management Executive Programme for Singapore Social Services.

Prof. (Dr.) PB Sharma, Vice-Chancellor, Amity University Gurugram in his special address highlighted resilience that India is demonstrating in the handling of Covid 19. Leaders must act with urgency, and they must acknowledge the crisis. Often delay in crisis creates unmanageable situations. Leaders must also act a tremendous amount of robustness on the policies and their execution.

The discussion was hosted and moderated by Vice-President- RBEF and Director- International Affairs, Prof. (Dr.) Gunjan M Sanjeev. While delivering her speech, she talked about the necessity of new leadership models to be adopted to lead through the crisis and managing organizations.

Several senior officials actively participated in the discussion -Dean-Students Welfare, Maj, Gen. GS Bal (Retd), Director-HR, Rear Admiral KK Pandey (Retd), Director-Admission and HoD-ABS, Prof. (Dr) Vikas Madhukar, Director-AIBAS, Prof. (Dr.) Rajesh Nair and Deputy Director- ASH, Prof. Arunagshu Bhattacharya. The session emerged as a great platform where all participants came forward enthusiastically to express their thoughts with the esteemed speaker. The session was attended by over a hundred participants and was appreciated by the audience from both India and as well as overseas

Session was closed with vote of thanks from Prof. (Dr.) Gunjan M Sanjeev where she thanked guest for the wonderful session on such a contemporary issue and other panelist for sharing their valuable insights.
