

The aim of this journal is to discuss the most recent innovations and concerns in Green Environment and it tries to provide practical solutions which needs to be adopted in direction of sustainability and environmental safety to remediate a scathed environment into pristine one. It is an initiative to promote less hazardous substances, and supporting environmental policies and measures for development of green chemistry. The proposed Amity Journal of Environment Studies would be interdisciplinary in nature and proposes to publish original research papers, articles, book reviews and cases in basic principles of ecology and environmental science, as well as associated subjects such as ethics policy, politics, law, economics, philosophy, environmental sociology and environmental justice, planning, pollution control and natural resource management.