Mr Abhijeet started the Workshop by addressing students and stating the importance of utilizing updated online resources for their studies and research. He explained how LexisNexis is different from other online sources as the portal has data from various nations making the site more extensive in material availability. He highlighted the user-friendliness of the portal and stated that all the material available could be downloaded for free. The same is also linked to original sources, which is citable for the users.

He illustrated the whole process to the participants practically online, the same was visible to the students on two drop-down screens in Moot Court. He explained the method of using the official site of LexisNexis Advance India detailing to the students how to use the 'Search Option' on the said site for exploring various Acts, Law Reports, Case Laws, Books, Documentaries, Articles, etc by elaborating on various specific keywords and how to filter out the content according to relevance to the user. During the Event, participants asked various queries from the Mr Gupta, which he resolved by explaining and demonstrating the same online. In the end, Maj. Gen. P.K. Sharma (Retd.) and Dr Sunita Sharma presented Amity Memento to Mr Abhijeet Gupta as a token of gratitude and thanked him for imparting such practical and useful knowledge to all the participants.

After the whole process was illustrated, the participants were taken to the Amity Law School Library-cum-Computer Lab where students used the LexisNexis site themselves on the desktops. Mr Gupta showed how students could use LexisNexis on IP-configured systems and as well on their Amizone from anywhere. The students practised the same and used the portal for searching various data. The Workshop delivered hands-on practical knowledge to all the participants, which will be very useful for them in future for their studies and research.
