

Report on SDG 16 - Peace, Justice and Strong Institution

Violence due to spiritual and religious conflict are the most significant and destructive challenge to the development, growth, and well being of societies. Amity University Madhya Pradesh is committed and abide in reducing crime and sexual and gender based violence, tackling child trafficking cases and also Children's rights violations. University addressed and deal with the challenges of violence at all levels – individual, relationship, community and societal.

To spread the message of peace, justice and non violence the Gandhi Peace week is held annually on the weekend closest to the day of his birth, Oct. 2. This intended to promote non-violence, peace and justice, to support local peace and human rights organizations, and to draw attention to and encourage dialogue about issues around the world.

The interdisciplinary peace program conducted to deal with war and peace, violence and non-violence, conflict and conflict transformation. By focusing attention on problems of conflict, particularly of a violent nature, Amity University Madhya Pradesh attempted to improve methods of analyzing and dealing with these problems.

The university also formulated the policies to ensure the peace, justice and gender and caste based violence, and health. By teaching and conducting Programs, the Amity University Madhya works collaboratively to establish on-campus and community events